

```

import requests
API_KEY = '2394ceb479e01f28ff48046577fc4e10'

city = 'Mumbai'

url = f"http://api.openweathermap.org/data/2.5/weather?
q={city}&appid={API_KEY}&units=metric"

response = requests.get(url)

if response.status_code == 200:
    data = response.json()
    print(f"City: {data['name']}") print(f"Temperature: {data['main']['temp']}°C") print(f"Weather: {data['weather'][0]['description']}")
else:
    print(f"Failed to retrieve data. Status code: {response.status_code}, Reason: {response.reason}")

City: Mumbai
Temperature: 27.99°C
Weather: haze

import requests
import matplotlib.pyplot as plt

API_KEY = '2394ceb479e01f28ff48046577fc4e10'
city = 'Mumbai'

url = f"http://api.openweathermap.org/data/2.5/weather?
q={'Mumbai'}&appid={'2394ceb479e01f28ff48046577fc4e10'}&units=metric"
response = requests.get(url)

if response.status_code == 200:
    data = response.json()

    temp = data['main']['temp'] feels_like = data['main']['feels_like'] humidity = data['main']['humidity'] labels = ['Temperature', 'Feels Like', 'Humidity'] values = [temp, feels_like, humidity]

    plt.bar(labels, values)
    plt.title(f"Weather Data for {city}")
    plt.ylabel("Values")
    plt.show()
else:
    print("Error fetching data")

```

